Title:	HPI Stern Center for Evidence-Based Policy
Project Summary / Specific Aims	The Stern Center for Evidence-Based Policy will bridge the gap between scientific research and health policymaking in the United States. The Stern Center's mission is to foster, support, and lead initiatives that inform the policymaking process with scientific, methodologically sound research that generates actionable evidence-based policy recommendations. It is anticipated that, initially, the policy issues to be considered by the Stern Center may include, but are not limited to, the triple aim in healthcare to improve access and quality at lower cost. It is further anticipated that the Stern Center shall s and addressing the needs of the elderly population as a key part of this triple aim objective. It is hoped that the Stern Center will aid in informing the local, state, and national health policymaking process with evidence-based research.
